Immunology is a study of the immune system and is a very important branch of the medical and biological sciences. The immune system protects us from infection by various lines of defense. If the immune system does not work as it should, it can lead to diseases such as autoimmune, asthma and cancer. It is also becoming clear that immune responses contribute to the development of many specific disorders not historically seen as immunological, including metabolic, neurological, and neurodegenerative conditions such as Alzheimer's.

The Immunology 2020 is an event that aims to dissecting latest advancements and innovations in the field of Allergy, Immunology, at Zurich, Switzerland on October 14-15, 2020.
