Editorial Note

Journal of Women's Health, Issues and Care (ISSN: 2325-9795)-Open Journal (JWHIC) is an online open access journal which deals with the health issues, specific to woman.

The journal aims at disseminating health issues such as contraception, menstruation, maternal health, child birth, menopause and breast cancer as well as creating awareness regarding the social stigma such as sexual education, abortion, contraception, and discrimination faced by woman in the society.

Family planning and sexual education plays a huge role in maintaining good health in woman. But the irony is that the value of family planning, contraception and sexual education is often underestimated by majority of the population.

Having always been a though provoking subject, women's health and related issues will help spread social awareness pertaining to the qualms of gender as a social determinant of health and issues specific to human female anatomy. This will further help in understanding the areas where biological sex differences between women and men exist.

The World Health Organization emphasizes on gender being a social determinant of health and exposes all the initiatives required to handle the health issues of a woman more than a moral issue.

So keeping all the factors in focus, Journal of Women's Health, Issues and Care (JWHIC) has come up with as idea of sharing this note to aware and support women health among people.

Everyone needs to understand that unplanned and unwanted pregnancies have significant implications for both the health of the patient as well as the fetus. Unwanted and unplanned pregnancies may lead to increase the stress level among woman and the most feared risk in such cases is the psychotic denial of the pregnancy.

In order to minimize unwanted pregnancies among people, it is critically important to connect these woman to primary care doctors, gynecologists, or community health coaches who can provide early and regular contraception and sexual education.
