

Links between disruptive emotions and chronic diseases in traditional Chinese medicine

Alice Tamaccio

Aix-Marseille University, France

Abstract

Thanks to the theory of meridians, Traditional Chinese Medicine allows a comprehensive and a subtle approach to health but also to diseases.

How is it possible to link emotional disturbances and physical illnesses? How can we interpret physical disorders in light of the emotional history of patients?

How can we interpret the pulses in this case?

How to bring patients to a healthy awareness that will allow them to be in better health?
