

Living the Rest of Your Life- the Life After Retirement

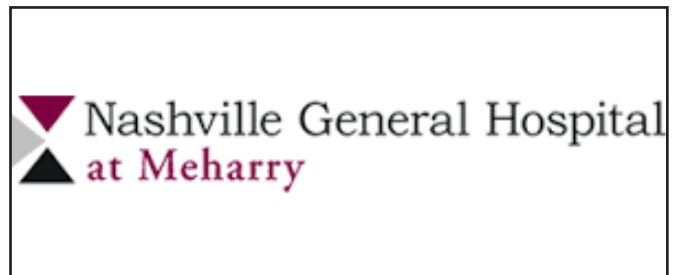

Winston Vo

Nashville General Hospital

Abstract:

Retiring does not mean “life is completed and no longer worth living”. Health has worn out with age, if understood in religion, is preparing for the next life. There are many reasons for you to live happily, to pass on to your children and grandchildren as your parents did for you. Not to mention increasingly weakened body, it is time to need your children to help, and serve until the last breath. You need to convey your ideas and wishes for the moment of death. With the experience of living and working, the older people can create a warm living environment, a useful connection with the younger generation. This book is a guide to psychology, beliefs, and how to maintain a “thin” but strong body through examples, and the analysis of current trends. The end of life, everyone must go through. Each of them has different circumstances, but everyone has to explore, and research to have a peaceful end, and people staying behind are less tormented and suffering. Articles and speeches are selected influential people in political, cultural, and religious life. Following will be a commentary from reputable newspapers. Thus, readers will understand the problem, and have knowledge of timeless philosophy.

Biography : My name is Winston Vo, currently living in Nashville, Tennessee- a healthcare hub, also known as Music City USA. I have an engineering degree in Chemical Engineering & Applied Mathematics from Vanderbilt U (Class '98, cum laude). I worked in the petroleum industry with Honeywell/Phillips (66) Petroleum Refinery in Northern Texas for 2 years. Since then (in 15 years), I have been working in a hospital pharmacy after a short year of studying in the Doctor of Pharmacy Program at Duquesne U. With an expansive resume, no doubt I could make an impact in a project for promoting a new role of pharmacists counseling patients regarding their medications and being reimbursed for their efforts. In January 1st, 2006, the Medicare Prescription Part D Plan was enacted that made this new role a reality. Pharmacists in retail settings began to work with clinics (managed by a nurse practitioner

Publication of speakers:

1. Immunotherapy Drugs Work Like Vaccines: The Genetics Scope of Antibodies and Each Individual is Opportunistic in Finding and Destroying Tumors
2. Sống Nhìng Ngày Còn Lại (vì hìu) [Life After Retirement]
3. Dual wave-particle Nature of Light: Magnetic Effect of Light Could Lead to Solar Power without Traditional Semiconductor-Based Solar Cells.

Webinar On Hospice and Palliative care, June10, 2020, London, Uk

Citation: Winston Vo, Living the Rest of Your Life- the Life After Retirement, Webinar On Hospice and Palliative care, June10, 2020, London, Uk