

Nursing care in dermatology practice

Hanan Rabea Nada

Cairo University, Egypt

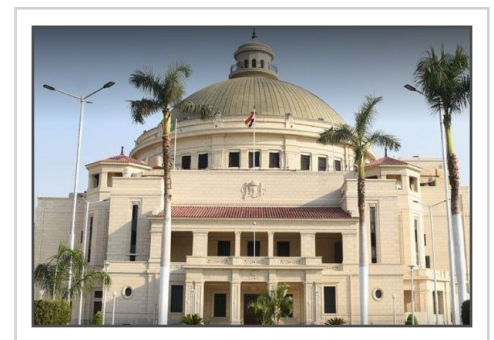

Abstract

In Dermatology practice, we are challenged with life threatening cases that need admission and proper management to save patients' lives. During admission nursing care is one of the mile stones for successful patients' survival measures. Nurses should be accounted with different dermatologic diseases and how to deliver proper nursing care.

Biography

Hanan Rabea Nada has received her MD in Dermatology, cosmetology and laser science from Cairo University during the period of 1996-1999. Currently, she is working as Professor in Cairo University. Her research has included a wide variety of topics related to dermatology. Based on this research and fellowship training he has received several honors, such as: she is serving as an editorial member of reputed journal (Journal of Procedural Dermatology) and expert Reviewers for journals like biomedical science, Medical sciences and Journal of Egyptian Women's society of Dermatology. She has authored many research articles.

3rd Global Conference on Nursing and Healthcare | January 20, 2021

Citation: Hanan Rabea Nada, Nursing care in dermatology practice, Nursing Congress 2021, 3rd Global Conference on Nursing and Healthcare, January 20th, 2021, 05